SOFT TO THE TOUCH

Plain white tiles may work for a minimalist look, but why not add interest with these unusual velvet-set designs from De Ferranti? Available in 30 or 40cm, these unique floral tiles are made with velvet set in concrete. Bespoke commissions are accepted and other designs are available. Priced at £720sq m, the floral designs come in six shades: Cherry, Marzipan, Oyster, Liquorice, Grapefruit and Pearl

SURFACES

BESPOKE VINYL

First there were digital images on splashbacks, now you can have them on your floors with Forbo's Floorink vinyl. Simply pick an image from its selection or choose your own. From £95sq m

Brush up

Award-winning kitchen design company Chiselwood has teamed up with Little Greene to bring you 35 original shades of The Chiselwood Paint Collection. Inspired by colours found in both the kitchen and garden, such as Garlic, shown, Beetroot and Icing Sugar Blue, the paints are grouped together in five varying palettes: Crème, Terre, Vert, Bleu and Rouge. From £37.50 for a 2.5-litre tin of acrylic eggshell

FABULOUS FLOORING

Broadleaf's new range of Vintage Oak Parquet offers a glam alternative to the usual polished parquet floor. Featuring softly worn edges and a distressed patina, it comes in a range of shades, such as Dark, shown. It costs £69.65sq m

SET IN STONE

Create interest in your kitchen with a textured Stoneskin wall from Devon Stone. Combining natural stone with a resin to create a layered look, Stoneskin will add heritage to a period-style kitchen and offer a talking point for fashionistas with a contemporary scheme. It also gives a 3D look to walls that guests just won't be able to resist touching. Stoneskin is available in six natural finishes: Oriental Basalt, Ardesia Nera, shown, Everest Green, Pierre D'Orient, Oyster and Sunrise. Priced from £98.16sq m
