

Bespoke screen by local craftsmen to be auctioned at Magna Carta Dinner at Lincoln Cathedral

A screen made by nationally acclaimed bespoke kitchen and furniture company, Chiselwood, will be one of the auction lots at the Magna Carta Dinner on Friday 5th June at Lincoln Cathedral.

Chiselwood is also one of the main sponsors of the dinner which will be in the nave of the Cathedral to mark 800 years since the sealing of Magna Carta by King John. The great significance for Lincoln is that the Cathedral owns one of only four surviving copies. The dinner is expected to raise funds for the Cathedral and especially its fabric.

Chiselwood has a reputation for attention to detail, quality and innovative design. These distinctive qualities are exemplified in this decorative screen which replicates the nave of the cathedral.

Measuring 7 feet high and 4 feet wide, the screen was originally inspired by a brief from a client who married in the Cathedral many years ago and who wanted a unique room divider for their multi-million pound new house project in the South of England. It is made from Pippy Oak with the actual screen being painted.

The highly skilled team of Chiselwood cabinet makers produced the screen in Chiselwood's Saxilby workshop and used exceptional skills to hand carve and hand cut the frame and base. The decorative screen was then laser cut using the latest technology. It has taken over 80 hours to create and was designed personally by Chiselwood founder and Design Director, Martin Holliday.

This unique screen would provide a stunning focal point in a number of residential and commercial environments including formal entrance, function room or private residence or to create a bespoke backdrop in a high end gallery.

Bids for this and other amazing, bespoke pieces are being taken leading up to the event.
